

Workplace Violence: Prevention & Response

One Day Guided Intervention

Course Description

Surveys show that one out of every four employees will be somehow impacted by violence, threat of violence, or criminal activity in the workplace. Everyone at work today should be equipped with the skills for handling potentially dangerous events and preventing them from escalating into violence and terror.

Whether you are an employee who is faced with the threat or potential for harm, or a manager (including human resources personnel) taking the lead in creating a safe work environment, this course will help you learn the required skills. It focuses on identifying potentially threatening behaviors and environments, taking preventative actions to thwart violent situations before they are even considered, and handling emergencies with a cool head to reduce the potential of violence. Easy to remember tactics and strategies are also provided. Upon course completion, you will have the skills and tools to recognize threats, how to bring them forward, how to deter and diminish a variety of dangerous situations, and thus ensure a safe work environment.
